It is understood that Minister CHENCK declined the dinner tendered him by Cincinnati, on the ground that although pork is very good in its place, and whisky a great deal better in its place, or in any ther place, yet a dinner made up exclusively of pork and whisky-and Cincinnat pork and whisky at that—is a traud to which no gentleman would lend himself.

The Rochester Domocrat says: "Ben GOLLADAY, M. C. of Kentucky, once gave the following toast: 'Champagne for true friends, and true pain for sham friends." Mr. G. ought not to have done hat, for the toast is a piece of loose property that was bequeathed to the public at large by a benevolent gentleman who died at least forty years ago.

Poor old PORTER will never hear the st of himself. The New York Star declares that his confirmation was "an official approval of fawning truculency, disgusting servility and underhanded malevo-lence unprecedented in the history of appointments in this country." INSURANCE.

Supplementary to his report on Life Insurance a review of which was published in these columns a few davi since, the Iosurance Commissioner, ER, Gunavus W. Smith, has just issued his further report on Fire and Marine Insurance with abstracts of the condition of the business of the and marine insurance companies incommissions.

regard to these companies is moorported in inserport, prior to the more detailed account to be made up when all the statements shall be given in to the office.

The receas general insurance laws require that each insurance company organised under authority of the first e shall have a guarantee of one hundred thousand dollars, and that this capital, and the funds accumulated in the course of insurance business, shall-be hesseld in certain pre-cribed securities. There are two classes of the insurance companies organized in the Stite that seriously object to this provision of the law. Vizt Companies that are doing a recent launting, exchange, and discount business on insurance capital and the funds accumulated in the course of insurance business; and the purely mutual companies, that have no capital and to funds accumulated in the course of business. The latter pay losses by assessments on the policy-holders, made after the losses occur. In this connection Mr. Smith says:

cumulated in the course of business. The latter ray losses by assessment on the policy-holders, made after the losses occur. In this camecion Mr. Smith says:

In my opinion, it is a wise requirement of law that provides that all insurance companies shall practice lity-have the sum of one hundred thesis without any other lieu on it, direct or indirect. I see no reason why fire, marine; and accident, insurance companies should not be required to uposit this amount in the prescribed securities, without any other lieu on it, direct or indirect. I see no reason why fire, marine; and accident, insurance companies. But it is not proposed at piecent to recommend any changes in the law; satisfied that it is best first to see the practical working and results from one year, if not more, under the law as it now stands.

It is the sum of the law is the companies of the practical working and results from one year, if not more, under the law as it now stands.

It is not to recommend any changes in the law; satisfied that it is best first to see the practical working and results from one year, if not more, the state and to the access of insurance companies of the state and to the access of the unique companies. The state and to the access of the state and the state of the condition of such companies." The law makes it the early of all ingurance companies of the state and deposit in the office of the condition of such companies. The statement of the condition of such companies of the statement of the condition of such companies of the statement of the condition of such companies and the statement of the condition of such companies and the statement of the condition of such companies and the statement of the condition of such companies and the statement of the condition of such companies and the statement of the condition of such companies and the statement of the company of cool standing; and this amount is generally estate the relaxat

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

The Trial of John Helts, Charge

CONTINUED TO TO-DAY.

The trial of John Heltz for the killing of Geo. Lobetete, under an indictment for murder, nat-urally creates much interest among the respec-tive friends of the accused and deceased. The

The trial of John Heirs for the Milling of Geo. Lobstein, under an indictionent for murder, naturally creates much interest smong the respective frience of the accessed and deceased. The vidence elicited on the trial exabilished that, on the 17th of March last, about six o'clock in the evening, John Heitz (the accessed), Charles Lisch and George Lobstein, on their way home from a sale which they had that day stienced in coopiny, four or five miles from the city of the cooping of the control of the cooping of th wint to the nearest police station and surrendered bined to Policeman Ernhoff, who took him in charge.

The with sees put it at from five to ten minites interval between the struggle between the parties include the house and the shooting. And there is less discrepancy in the statements of the various witnesses than usual in cases of this kind. With this exception, we noticed none, to wit. William Moore, whose evidence was received through an interpreter, testified that Heitz partially drive the pistol from its concealment, after he had been released from the grasp of Lobsfeld, which will be the present from the statement and accurate the time of the statement o asylums, and church-yards, and brings mouting to the innocent, but unhappy wives and children of its yielims.

The effort of the counsel for the defense seems to be to extablish—first, that the accused was in a state of partial insanily, such as to render hits irresponsible, and failins in that, accountly, to reduce the effense from murder to manisupher, on account of the atsence of malice. And it was very well proven that when under the influence of liquor Heliz is rather more wild than men usually are in life condition. Hence the contest began first upon the instructions off-reduce the contest began first upon the instructions off-reduce the contest began first upon the instructions off-reduce to the jury. We have herefolder noticed various popular errors as to questions of law. Another one is that malice requires a long period of gestation; that it must be nursed in the bosom for a long time to become thoroughly ripe; whereas the law grants that malice may be the growth of but a very short period. It is imagined that if one highly wrought up with passion is in a freizy of madness, and while so commits homicite, that this cannot possibly be murder; while the law locks at the provocation and strives to ascertain whether there was any good grounds for this frenzy than killing asother even in the heat of passion may be murder if the provocation to this passion were light and frivious. Hence, after argument pro and con on the instructions as at first submitted by counsel, his Honor Judge Jackson sent to the jury a series of instructions as at first submitted by counsel, his Honor Judge Jackson sent to the jury a series of instructions as at first submitted by counsel, his Honor Judge Jackson sent to the jury a series of instructions as at first submitted by counsel, his Honor Judge Jackson sent to the jury a series of instructions as at first submitted by counsel, his Honor Judge Jackson sent to the jury a series of instructions as the first numbried by counsel, his Honor Judge Jackson sent to the jury a series o

THE PERQUISITE QUESTION.

The Views of an Under-paid Clerk—A Protest Which Exhibits the Evils of our Present System.

The subjoined communication from the Clerk of Trimble county proceeds uoon a misconception of the Countra-Journal's suggestions with regard to the compensation of clerks. The writer's facts and pleas are all on our side. The system of perquisites which puts off the clerks of some courts with a piting two hundred dollars, awards to the cide puts on the cierks of some cours with a put-ral two hundred dollars, awards to the city cierk or to him of the rich and populous county from five to thirty thousand dollars per annum, enriching him acd supplying him at the same time with a corruption fund to be used in influencing conventious and holding his place at the same time with a corruption fund to be used in influencing conventious and holding his place against all comers. We contend that this should be reformed altogether; that the fees should go to the State and be used to pay the salaries of judges and equalize the compensation of the subordinate officers of courts in the several counties, so that all may be paid more in accordance with the struces they render. Where the law compels a cierk to give his whole time to his office, be should receive an adequate salary independent a cierk to give in whole unce to insome the should receive an adequate salary independent of the fees of his office, and where all the ciercial duties are not worth more than three or four thousand dollars, there is no propriety or good policy in allowing the cierk to receive thirty or forty thousand dollars for the discharge of them—[EDITOR. I have notice of late several editorials in your daily relative to the increase of the salaries of the Circuit. Judges in this State. I most cordshily agree with you in this, but the means by which you would accomplish this much-needed end do seem to me to have been adopted by you usthoughtedly; or probably when you made the assertion that the "princely fees and perquisites of clerks should be reduced," which fees, &c., you say are "a scandal and a scare crow in the slight of business and unshee and a useless waste of the public money," you had in your mind's eye the few clerks of the counties of Jefferson, Kettor, Campbell, and Franklin. You certailly did not mean to include in your sweep
